

that time Mr. Wentworth was removed to the East. He then sold his property in State Center and removed his family to Des Moines. In 1920 he returned to Des Moines and continued his work for the company until his retirement in 1931. He then removed to Mount Dora, Florida. At State Center he was a member of the local school board. At Mount Dora he took an active part in political, social and economic life, and with local public improvements, and continued to exercise his rare social abilities and faculty of making friends.

JOHN ENSTER CRAIG was born in Claysville, Washington County, Pennsylvania, March 14, 1853, and died in Keokuk, Iowa, February 27, 1936. His parents were Alexander K. and Sarah (McLain) Craig. He was educated in public school and Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated in 1877. In the meantime he had been doing farm work and teaching school to earn the means to pursue his education. He removed to Keokuk in 1878 and became a law student in the office of his uncle, John H. Craig. In 1879 he was admitted to practice and became a member of the firm of Craig, Collier & Craig. In 1885 he was elected representative, was re-elected in 1887, and served in the Twenty-first and Twenty-second general assemblies. In 1889 he was elected mayor of the city of Keokuk, and served four years, or until 1893. In 1896 he was elected county attorney of Lee County, was re-elected two years later and served four years. In 1902 and again in 1904 he was the Democratic nominee for Congress from the First District, but each time was defeated in general election by the then Congressman, Thomas Hedge. In 1918 he was elected a judge of the First Judicial District and the following January succeeded Judge Henry Bank, Jr., and by re-elections he was serving in the same position at the time of his death. Both as lawyer and jurist he was noted for the thoroughness with which he went into cases, for the analytical and able way in which he handled them, and for the high ethical standards which he followed. At the time of his death he was the oldest member of the Keokuk bar. Besides the positions already mentioned which his city and district had given him, he served the public in many other ways. For eleven years he was a member of the Keokuk Board of Education. At one time he acted as president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Keokuk and occupied the chair of medical jurisprudence. For forty-one years, or since 1895, he had been president of the Board of Trustees of Keokuk Public Library. He was a devoted member of the Presbyterian church and a Sunday school worker for years. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, and a member of the Pioneer Lawmakers of Iowa.
