DOUGLAS BIGGS is associate professor of history and associate dean of the College of Natural and Social Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Kearney. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1996 in medieval English history. He has written extensively on the reigns of Richard II (1377-1399) and Henry IV (1399-1413) and is a fellow of the Royal Historical Society. This is his first foray into Iowa history.

KARA W. SWANSON is associate professor in the School of Law, Northeastern University, Boston, Massachusetts. She earned a B.S. in molecular biophysics and biochemistry from Yale University, an M.A. in biochemistry and a J.D. from the University of California at Berkeley, and completed her Ph.D. in the history of science at Harvard University. Her book-in-progress is a history of body banks in the twentieth-century United States, focusing on breast milk, blood, and sperm.
