Contributors

DURWOOD BALL is associate professor of history and editor of the New Mexico Historical Review at the University of New Mexico (UNM). He is writing a biography of Edwin Vose Sumner. He thanks the UNM Center for Regional Studies for funding the map published in this article.

PAUL MOKRZYCKI is a doctoral candidate in the history department at the University of Iowa. His dissertation explores the missing children scare and the politics of child safety in the late twentieth-century United States. Mokrzycki's essay on the Atlanta youth slayings will appear in a forthcoming issue of Southern Cultures. He is also the founding editor of the Middle West Review, an interdisciplinary journal focusing on the American Midwest.

STACY PRATT MCDERMOTT is assistant director and associate editor for the Papers of Abraham Lincoln, where she has worked since 1996. She earned her Ph.D. in American history from the University of Illinois and is the author of two books and numerous articles on legal history, Abraham Lincoln, and the history of race. Her latest book, a biography of Mary Lincoln, will be published in January 2015 by Routledge.
