

our very first volume. We think so much of this volume that we have it wrapped up and chained and put in one of the storage vaults of the bank, and we do not want to leave this volume unprotected. Of course you are perfectly welcome to the use of it during banking hours, but before the bank closes this volume will have to go back into the vault. We might state that the sum of $10,000.00 would not begin to name the price that we set on this volume."

In view of the vast number of newspapers in our own collections, their long and unbroken files, and the valuation the Hawkeye places on its early files—in which we are prone to join—our response embraced the following language: "I surely appreciate the value you place on that volume. If it is worth $10,000 it makes me sure our collection is worth $10,000,000."

To this we have had no response save the service the Hawkeye rendered in copying the lengthy article for us, so we assume our appraisal is agreed to by the Hawkeye. The good opinion of all Iowa papers and people is ardently craved by the Historical Department of Iowa, but none is more desired than that of the Hawkeye and its present owners. They hold to the ideals of John L. Waite, Frank Hatton, and the pioneers in the Hawkeye field with the old time passions. In no way do they sustain the Hawkeye's prestige better than in the jealous care with which they guard their first historic volume, and in the valuation they put upon it.
