CINEMA JOURNAL — an essential forum and guide for scholars, fans, students, and teachers — contains the best in both new and traditional film scholarship including historical, feminist, Marxist, psychoanalytic, and structuralist approaches. Leading film scholars contribute lively articles — and often responses to articles — on film and television criticism, aesthetics, history, theory, and acting.

Published quarterly by the University of Illinois Press in conjunction with the Society for Cinema Studies. A year's subscription for individuals is $20.00 ($23.00 foreign); for institutions, $25.00 ($28.00 foreign). Single issues are $7.00.

Members of the Society for Cinema Studies receive CINEMA JOURNAL as a benefit of membership. Annual dues are $35.00 (for students working toward a degree in film, $20.00). Anyone with a record of film teaching or publication is invited to join. For membership information, write Janice Welsch, Department of English and Journalism, Western Illinois University, Macomb, IL 61455.
