

CREDO

Matt Rohrer

I believe there is something else entirely going on but no single person can ever know it, so we fall in love.

It could also be that what we use every day to open cans was something much nobler, that we'll never recognize.

I believe that the woman sleeping beside me doesn't care about what's really going on anymore, and her body is warm with trust which is a great beginning.
