

HISTORICAL SOCIETIES

PUBLICATIONS

Two articles in The Wisconsin Archeologist for April are: Fond du Lac County Antiquities, by William A. Titus; and Wisconsin Indian Models, by Charles E. Brown.

In the April number of The Medford Historical Register there may be found, among other things, a discussion of Pine and Pasture Hills and the Part They Have Contributed to the Development of Medford, by John H. Hooper; and a paper on Romance in History, by Helen T. Wild.

Besides continuations of documentary material The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography for April contains an article on The Virginia Frontier in History — 1778, by David I. Bushnell, Jr.

The January-April number of the German American Annals contains two articles, namely: The German Drama in English on the New York Stage to 1830, by Louis Charles Baker; and Robert Reitzel as Poet, by Adolf E. Zucker.

Among the articles which appear in the Records of the American Catholic Historical Society for June are the following: Preservation of Catholic Documents, by Lawrence F. Flick; A Visit to the Loretto of America, by Virginia Hardy; The Columbus Light, by Grace Pulliam; and a continuation of the Life of Bishop Conwell, by Martin I. J. Griffin.

Three monographs, dealing with various phases of a large subject, are to be found in the October-December number of The Journal of American Folk-Lore, namely: Religion of the North American Indians, by Paul Radin; Mythology and Folk-Tales of the North American Indians, by Franz Boas; and The Social Organization of the Indians of North America, by A. A. Goldenweiser.

Following the policy established in 1909, the North Carolina Historical Commission has issued, for the use of the members of the General Assembly at the session of 1915, A Manual of North Carolina, compiled and edited by R. D. W. Connor.

Besides a bibliography of the publications of the Society, the Annals of the Georgia Historical Society for the year ending February 18, 1915, is devoted to reports of various officers and the annual report of the Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences.

A brief biographical sketch of Thomas Minns, by Henry H. Edes; and a continuation of the Extracts from the Diary of James Parker of Shirley, Mass., are among the contents of the April number of The New England Historical and Genealogical Register. A supplement contains the proceedings of the annual meeting of the Society held on February 3, 1915, together with memoirs of deceased members.

A biographical sketch of William Nelson, by Joseph Fulford Folsom, and the proceedings of the annual meeting of the Society on October 28, 1914, make up the contents of the July-October, 1914, number of the Proceedings of the New Jersey Historical Society.

Old Charles Town and its Vicinity: Accabee and Wappoo where Indigo was First Cultivated, by Henry A. M. Smith; A List of Non-commissioned Officers and Private Men of the Second South Carolina Continental Regiment of Foot, by John Bennett; and a continuation of the Order Book of John Faucheraud Grimké, August, 1778, to May, 1780, are among the contributions in the January number of The South Carolina Historical and Genealogical Magazine.

The Missouri Historical Review for April opens with a biographical sketch of Nathaniel Patten, Pioneer Editor, by F. F. Stephens. Francis A. Sampson is the compiler of a Bibliography of the Missouri Press Association and the writer of another article on Books of Early Travel in Missouri dealing with John Bradbury's volume describing his travels in the interior of America from 1809 to 1811.

There are also some notes, taken from various sources, relative to Harmony Mission.

Among the contents of the Journal of the Presbyterian Historical Society for March are the following: Report of the Committee on Historical Materials, Synod of New Jersey, for the Year 1914, by George H. Ingram; A Catalogue of Manuscript Records in the Possession of the Presbyterian Historical Society, by Joseph Brown Turner; and part three of The Diaries of the Rev. Seth Williston, D. D., edited by Rev. John Quincy Adams.

Some Remarks Upon the New Vancouver Journal, by F. W. Howay; The Organization and First Pastorate of the First Congregational Church of Walla Walla, Washington, by T. C. Elliott; From Salem, Oregon, to Seattle, Washington, in 1859, by Dillis B. Ward; Washington Mail Routes in 1857, by Thomas W. Prosch; and Rights of the Puget Sound Indians to Game and Fish, by Charles M. Buchanan, are articles which appear in the April number of The Washington Historical Quarterly.

Filson Club Publications numbers twenty-six and twenty-seven consist, respectively, of a monograph on The Kentucky Mountains Transportation and Commerce, 1750 to 1911: A Study in the Economic History of a Coal Field, by Mary Verhoeff; and a volume devoted to Petitions of the Early Inhabitants of Kentucky to the General Assembly of Virginia, 1769 to 1792, with an introduction by James R. Robertson. Especially interesting and valuable in the first named study are the discussions of the early trails, roads, and routes of travel to Kentucky.

Under the heading of Steam-boating on the Ohio and Mississippi Before the Civil War in the June number of the Indiana Magazine of History may be found some memoirs of Captain Wilson Daniels, of Troy, Indiana, edited by Preston A. Barba. Then follow some reminiscences of the Civil War and Andersonville Prison, by David S. Whitenack and Henry Devillez. Two other contributions are: County Seminaries in Indiana, by Walter Jackson Wakefield; and Judge John M. Johnson: An Appreciation of a Citizen, by Mrs. S. S. Harrell.

The Acts and Proceedings of the Pennsylvania Federation of Historical Societies at the tenth annual meeting held at Harrisburg on January 21, 1915, are printed in pamphlet form. A perusal of the eighty-five pages of this report furnishes the reader with a very good idea of the work done by the many local, patriotic, and other historical societies in Pennsylvania during the preceding year.

The May number of The Register of the Kentucky State Historical Society opens with the proceedings at the unveiling of the restored portrait of Washington in the capitol building at Lexington on February 22, 1915. Ella Hutchison Ellwanger is the writer of a sketch of the life of General John Breckinridge Castleman. Two other contributions are: Some Early Industries of Mercer County, by Mary A. Stephenson; and Old Times in Warren: Reminiscences of the Green River Section of Kentucky, by George Baber.

An address entitled The New North State, by Archibald Henderson, is the principal historical paper in the Proceedings of the Fifteenth Annual Session of the State Literary and Historical Association of North Carolina. There is also much that is interesting in the following papers read at a conference on county history: A New Type of County History, by William K. Boyd; The Vital Study of a County, by E. C. Branson; and How Can We Secure the Writing of County Histories?, by Miss Adelaide Fries and W. C. Jackson.

A third installment of Selections from the Follett Papers, edited by L. Belle Hamlin, may be found in the January-March number of the Quarterly Publication of the Historical and Philosophical Society of Ohio. The correspondence here printed consists chiefly of letters from Joshua R. Giddings to Oran Follett, scattered through the years from 1843 to 1847.

Among the contents of the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society at the annual meeting held in Worcester on October 21, 1914, are the following: an article on Early Harvard Broadsides, by William Coolidge Lane; a monograph on The Swedish Beginning of Pennsylvania and Other Events in Pennsylvania History, by Thomas Willing Balch; a scholarly discussion of The Royal Disallowance, by Charles M. Andrews; and a Bibliography of American Newspapers, 1690-1820, Part II: Kentucky to Maine, by Clarence S. Brigham.

The Historical Collections of the Essex Institute for April contains, among other things, a continuation of the article on The Governor of New Providence, West Indies, in 1702, by G. Andrews Moriarty; another installment of Newspaper Items Relating to Essex County, Massachusetts; and an article on The Woods, Salem, in 1700, by Sidney Perley.

The Aaron Burr Conspiracy in the Ohio Valley, by Miss Leslie Henshaw, is an article which occupies the opening pages in the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Quarterly for April. Basil Meek traces The Evolution of Sandusky County. There is a paper by John Lee Webster on The West in American History. Byron R. Long presents a biography of Isaac Newton Walter, Pioneer Preacher of Ohio. And finally, there is a brief statement concerning the First Catholic Church in Ohio, by M. B. Archer.

A sketch of the life of Hon. Robert Goldsborough, Barrister, 1733-1788, by Henry F. Thompson and A. S. Dandridge, is the first contribution in the June number of the Maryland Historical Magazine. Clayton C. Hall is the writer of a discussion of The Great Seal of Maryland, a replica of which has recently been discovered in London and presented to the State of Maryland. There is a continuation of the Letters of Rev. Jonathan Boucher, and there also appear some Extracts from the Carroll Papers. Finally, there is an article by Bernard C. Steiner on John J. Crittenden's Maryland Correspondents.

A monograph on the case of Texas versus White, by William W. Pierson, Jr., occupies the opening pages of The Southwestern Historical Quarterly for April. New York and the Independence of Texas is the subject which James E. Winston discusses. Frederic L. Paxson is the writer of a brief article on The Constitution of Texas, 1845. Part three of the study of Harris County, 1822-1845, dealing in this instance with local administration, is contributed by Adele B. Looscan. And finally, there is another installment of British Correspondence Concerning Texas, edited by Ephraim Douglass Adams.

The April number of the Annals of Iowa is a "Public Archives Number", the opening contribution being a paper by Ethel B. Virtue on the Principles of Classification of Archives, which was read at the Conference of Archivists in Chicago last winter. Lawrence J. Burpee briefly discusses Reciprocity in Historical Materials; and there is a third article by C. C. Stiles on the Public Archives of Iowa, consisting chiefly of a detailed outline of the classification of the archives from the office of Auditor of State. In the editorial department may also be found much interesting material relative to the preservation, use, and administration of archives, together with a brief sketch of the life of Edward F. Winslow, by Wm. Forse Scott.

The April number of The Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography opens with an article on Johan Classon Rising, the Last Director of New Sweden, on the Delaware, by Amandus Johnson. Then follows the Narrative or Journal of Capt. John Ferdinand Dalziel Smyth, of the Queen's Rangers, dated New York, December 25, 1777, and written for the purpose of making known the poor treatment received by "those unhappy people who had the misfortune to fall into the hands of the rebels". Another interesting document is the prospectus of The First Coal Mining Company of the Lehigh Region. Among the remaining contributions may be mentioned a diary of Captain Jacob Morgan telling of Life in a Frontier Fort During the Indian War; and a reprint of a document entitled The Case of the Proprietor of Pensilvania, &c., About the Appointing a New Deputy-Governor.

The April number of The American Historical Review opens with a detailed account of The Meeting of the American Historical Association in Chicago. In the following paper Guy Stanton Ford discusses Boyen's Military Law, by which universal military service was established in Prussia in 1814. The first installment of a study of Anglo-French Commercial Rivalry, 1700-1750: The Western Phase, is presented by Charles M. Andrews. The last article is one on The Cotton Factorage System of the Southern States, by Alfred Holt Stone. The "Notes and Suggestions" in this number include a discussion of the reform of Josiah and its secular aspect, a brief note on James I and witchcraft, and an extended statement concerning the casting votes of the Vice Presidents of the United States from 1789 to 1915. Under the headings of "Documents" there is a second installment of Letters from Lafayette to Luzerne, 1780-1782, edited by Waldo G. Leland.

Leslie M. Scott is the writer of a History of Astoria Railroad which is the initial contribution in The Quarterly of the Oregon Historical Society for December. A paper by T. C. Elliott on The Fur Trade in the Columbia River Basin Prior to 1811 is of special interest in that it shows clearly that there were several trading posts in the Oregon country before the establishment of Astoria. Some Recollections of General E. L. Applegate are presented by George Stowell; while some Personal Reminiscences of Samuel L. Simpson are written by William W. Fidler, who lived in Iowa for several years before he removed with his father to Oregon in 1853. The remaining articles are: The Influence of Canadian French on the Earliest Development of Oregon, by John Minto; and Champoeg, Marion County, the First Grain Market in Oregon, by the same writer. Finally, there is reprinted from THE IOWA JOURNAL OF HISTORY AND POLITICS of July, 1912, some material relative to Emigration from Iowa to Oregon in 1843.

The June number of The Mississippi Valley Historical Review opens with an article by Frederic L. Paxson entitled A Constitution of Democracy — Wisconsin, 1847, a subject of much interest to the student of Iowa history because of the close connection between Wisconsin and Iowa during the early period. A paper on the Settlement of Michigan Territory, by George N. Fuller, is a contribution to the history of the westward movement. Archer B. Hulbert presents a second installment of his study of The Methods and Operations of the Scioto Group of Speculators. The last long article is a survey of Historical Activities in the Old Northwest, 1914-1915, by Solon J. Buck. A separate survey of historical activities in Canada will hereafter be made in the Review. The "Notes and Documents" include a discussion of Some New-found Records of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, by Milo M. Quaife; a note on The Underwood Journal, by Louise Phelps Kellogg; a letter relative to Detroit During the Revolution, with an introduction by Clarence M. Burton; a note concerning Work on the Cumberland Road, by Earl G. Swem; and a letter dealing with The French Settlers at Gallipolis, contributed by Mrs. Charles P. Noyes.

Volume fourteen of the Jahrbuch der Deutsch-Amerikanischen Gesellschaft von Illinois, edited by Julius Goebel, is a book of nearly seven hundred pages. The first contribution consists of some Follen-Briefe, or letters of Karl Follen and his relatives during the time of his sojourn in Switzerland and North America, edited by Herman Haupt. Deutschamerikanische Dichter und Dichtungen des 17 und 18 Jahrhunderts is the subject of a lengthy article by H. A. Rattermann. Following this there is a paper entitled German-American Jews, by Herman Eliassof; after which Otto Lohr discusses Das Deutschamerikanertum vor hundert Jahren und der Krieg von 1812-15. Then comes a one hundred and seventy page contribution to the political history of Iowa, namely, a study of The Germans in the Gubernatorial Campaign of Iowa in 1859, by Professor F. I. Herriott of Drake University. This was the campaign in which Samuel J. Kirkwood defeated Augustus Caesar Dodge for the office of Governor and in which Kirkwood had for his running mate Nicholas J. Rusch of Scott County, one of the leading Germans of the State. The last paper is one by Viola E. Knoche on The Early Influence of Richard Wagner in America.

Under the editorship of St. George L. Sioussat, there appeared in March the first number of a new quarterly publication called the Tennessee Historical Magazine, published at Nashville by the Tennessee Historical Society. "The venture is not altogether a new one," says the editor, "for we look back with gratification and encouragement to the nine volumes of the American Historical Magazine, which, beginning in 1896 under the auspices of the Peabody Normal College, was later continued until 1904, as the organ of the Tennessee Historical Society." Two interesting articles are to be found in the initial number, namely: Colonel Burr's First Brush with the Law: An Account of the Proceedings Against Him in Kentucky, by W. E. Beard; and the first section of a study of The Indian Policy of the Federal Government and the Economic Development of the Southwest, 1789-1801, by Donald L. McMurry. Under the heading of "Documents" appear The Journal of General Daniel Smith, one of the Commissioners to Extend the Boundary Line Between the Commonwealths of Virginia and North Carolina, August, 1779, to July, 1780, with introduction and notes by St. George L. Sioussat; and a brief diary of Lieutenant McKenzie's Reconnoissance on Mobile Bay, January 5-14, 1815. A department devoted to historical notes and news completes the contents. All students of Mississippi Valley history will welcome the appearance of this new and promising publication.

ACTIVITIES

The Wisconsin Archeological Society held its annual meeting at Milwaukee on Monday evening, March 15th.

A conference of the Superintendents of State historical societies in the Upper Mississippi Valley was held in Chicago on June 24th. Plans for coöperation along various lines were discussed.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Historical Society was held at Springfield on May 13 and 14, 1915. The principal address was delivered by Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch.

The Harrison County Historical Society is making an effort to induce the early settlers of that county to write reminiscences and donate to the Society papers, letters, relics, and other historical material.

Henry Van Dyke was reelected president of the Presbyterian Historical Society at the annual meeting held on January 14, 1915.

A special meeting of the American Historical Association will be held at San Francisco, Berkeley, and Palo Alto on July 21, 22, 23, respectively. The papers read at these sessions will relate almost entirely to Pacific Coast history.

On February 16, 1915, a tablet in memory of the pioneers of Missouri was unveiled by the Missouri Historical Society in the Jefferson Memorial Building at St. Louis.

At the annual meeting of the Missouri Valley Historical Society of Kansas City held on January 12, 1915, the following officers were elected: John B. White, president; W. L. Campbell, vice president; Henry C. Flower, treasurer; and Mrs. Nettie C. Grove, secretary.

Among the recent acquisitions of the Department of Archives and History of Mississippi are the original records, letters, and papers of the Bank of Mississippi from 1809 to 1835.

The following officers were elected at the annual business meeting of the Texas State Historical Association on March 2, 1915: Mrs. Adele B. Loosecan, president; Charles W. Ramsdell, secretary-treasurer; and George W. Brackenridge, Miss Katie Daffan, R. C. Crane, and Mrs. Cornelia B. Stone, vice presidents.

At the annual meeting of the Virginia Historical Society held on February 25, 1915, the officers who served during the preceding year were reelected.

The Biennial Report of the Trustees of the Illinois State Historical Library for the two years ending November 5, 1914, reveals progress in the work of the library during the period indicated. Nearly six thousand books and pamphlets were added to the library, and two valuable volumes of Collections were published.

The Maryland Historical Society, through the generosity of its former president, Mr. Mendes Cohen, has recently come into the possession of a large collection of Carroll Papers, including letters from the correspondence of Charles Carroll of Carrollton and Charles Carroll of Annapolis, together with many other papers and documents.

The Annual Report of the Essex Institute for the year ending May 3, 1915, contains the plans and a description of the proposed addition to the building of the Institute. Additional stack room, a large museum room, portrait galleries, and a spacious auditorium are features of the plan. The librarian's report reveals the fact that nearly 1500 volumes and over 9000 pamphlets and serials have been added to the library during the past year.

The Seventh Biennial Report of the executive committee of the State Historical Society of Missouri contains an account of the progress of the Society during the two years ending on December 31, 1914. The most conspicuous activity of the Society during the period in question was in the development and expansion of its exchange department by which its collection of the publications of the other States was more than doubled. The total membership of the Society when the report was issued was thirteen hundred and sixty-five.

At a meeting held at Santa Fe on March 27th there was organized "The Southwestern Anthropological Society", the object of which is to study and investigate the Indians of the Southwest and the folklore of the Spanish colonists. Dr. Livingston Farrand was chosen president; Dr. F. E. Mera, vice president; Paul Radin, secretary; and Justice Richard H. Hanna, treasurer. The home of the president is in Denver, while the other three officers reside in Santa Fe. A committee of research, consisting of a number of prominent ethnologists, was also chosen.

The Michigan Pioneer and Historical Society held its forty-first annual meeting at Lansing on June 2 and 3, 1915. Among the papers and addresses on the program were the following: Menasseh Cutler's Relations to Higher Education in the Northwest, by John Cutler Shedd; Historic Sites in Detroit, by Clarence M. Burton; Story of the Government Operations in Surveying and Charting the Great Lakes from the Beginning of the Work in 1841 to the Present, by John Fitzgibbon; and The Michigan Fur Trade, by Mrs. Ida A. Johnson. There was also a conference on "Methods of co-operation on the part of public libraries, patriotic societies and county historical societies with the Michigan Historical Commission in gathering and publishing materials relating to the history of the State."

During the year 1914 the Department of Historical Research of the Carnegie Institution of Washington published two valuable volumes. One, prepared largely by Charles O. Paullin and Frederic

L. Paxson, is a guide to the materials for United States history since 1783 to be found in London archives; while the other, compiled by Charles M. Andrews, is a guide to similar materials for the period before 1783 located in the Public Record Office of Great Britain. Progress was made in the investigations in the archives in Paris, Seville, Switzerland, Austria, Scotland, the Netherlands, and Russia, but most of this work was interrupted by the outbreak of the European war. Work was also continued along various other lines, such as the gathering and editing of letters of delegates to the Continental Congress, the collection of treaties between European powers having a bearing on American history, and the compilation of the proceedings and debates of Parliament concerning North America from 1585 to 1783 — all of which will eventually be published.

The eighth annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical Association was held at New Orleans on April 22-24, 1915. Among the papers on the program were the following: Spanish Reaction Against the French Advance Toward New Mexico, by William E. Dunn; The Indian Policy of Bernardo de Galvez, by Elizabeth West; Early Louisiana Justice, by Henry L. Griffin; The Invasion of the Goths and Vandals, by Isaac J. Cox; New Orleans and the First Years of the American Revolution, by James Alton James; The West in the Treaty of Peace in 1763, by Clarence W. Alvord; Yankee Shipbuilding on the Ohio Before the Embargo, by Archer B. Hulbert; Rural Life in the Lower Mississippi Valley About 1803, by William O. Scroggs; Memphis as a Gateway of the West, by St. George L. Sioussat; Looking Backward to La Salle, by John Lee Webster; and Some Geographic Influence in Mississippi Valley History, by Frederick V. Emerson. At the business session Dunbar Rowland was elected president for the ensuing year; St. George L. Sioussat, first vice president; Charles E. Moore, second vice president; Clarence S. Paine, secretary and treasurer; and M. J. White and James F. Willard, members of the executive committee.

The library of the Minnesota Historical Society contained on January 1, 1915, a total of 117,922 books and pamphlets, which represented an increase of nearly nine thousand during the preceding biennium. The most important accessions of manuscript materials during that period were the papers of Ignatius Donnelly, Franklin Steele, and William Pitt Murray. The Society is also assisting in an investigation of the public archives of Minnesota. Volume fifteen of the Collections of the Society, containing a large number of short papers, will soon be ready for distribution. Hereafter, the Collections will be reserved for the publication chiefly of documentary material; while the papers read at meetings and other historical articles will be printed in the new quarterly known as the Minnesota History Bulletin. Beginning early in 1916 the Society plans to bring out a three-volume history of Minnesota, written by Professor William W. Folwell; and a volume of Collections containing the papers of Alexander Ramsey is now being prepared. The appointment of Dr. Solon J. Buck as Superintendent and Secretary has already been mentioned in these pages.

THE STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF IOWA

Dr. Fred E. Haynes has practically completed a monograph on the minor party movements in Iowa political history, which will be published by the Society.

Paul Walton Black, a member of the Society, who spent several years as a student at Drake University and at the University of Iowa, is the writer of an article on Community Needs and the Community Institute, published in the May number of The American City. Mr. Black is now Community Institute Organizer for the extension division of the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Louis Pelzer, whose writings are well known to the readers of the publications of the Society, is offering instruction at the Iowa State Teachers' College during the present summer session.
