

Letter from the Editor

I am pleased to present the second issue of the Iowa Historical Review, the premier online undergraduate history journal at the University of Iowa. Founded in 2006, it is dedicated to providing a forum for undergraduate historians to share and celebrate their work.

This issue opens with MARISSA FLOYD'S article on the electoral success of the Social-Democrats in Milwaukee, Wisconsin with a focus on the lead up to the election of 1910. SEBASTIAN MERCIER then examines superhero comic books from the 1930s to the 1980s as a looking glass of American values and concerns. In the following article, JAMESON RYLEY argues for the significance of the findings of The Committee on Alleged German Outrages (1915) in shaping world opinion during the First World War. The issue ends with JACOB BECKER'S review article on the Atlantic world.

I would like to thank the aforementioned authors for allowing us to publish their work. Again I thank Janelle Penny for her help throughout the editing process. I also wish to acknowledge the staff of the History Department Office and Professor Colin Gordon for their continuing encouragement and support for this endeavor.
