

Todd Earl Rhodes

UNTITLED

going down this path,
she is also a bard
returning to autumn

black umbrellas,
two of them,
blossoming at the bus stop

nailing
fresh-fallen leafs to the oak door, it's early autumn

weathered chairs,
two of them,
watching the round pond

she comes; but
her spirit draws up
a cooler air