

A Symposium of Young Poets

Contents

|                         |  |    |
|-------------------------|--|----|
| MICHAEL RYAN            | Introduction  | 54 |
| JON ANDERSON            | Refusals  | 57 |
|                         | Though I Long to Be No One                          | 58 |
|                         | The Secret of Poetry                                | 59 |
| Jack Myers              | Ripping Open the Wound to Get Backat the Knife | 60 |
| Jon Anderson's Response |  | 62 |
| NORMAN DUBIE            | Northwind Escarpment                                | 63 |
|                         | Africa  | 63 |
|                         | The Dugouts/Our Blue Angel                          | 65 |
| Jon Anderson            | On Norman Dubie's Poems                             | 65 |
| Norman Dubie's Response |  | 67 |
| LOUISE GLUCK            | Gemini  | 69 |
|                         | The Pond  | 70 |
|                         | For My Mother                                       | 70 |
| Stanley Plumly          | Gemini  | 71 |
| Louise Glück's Response |  | 73 |
| THOMAS LUX              | There Are Many Things That Please Me                | 75 |
|                         | Longitude and Latitude: Hart Crane                  | 76 |
|                         | No Possibility of Articulation                      | 77 |
| Norman Dubie            | You Could Be Wrong                                  | 77 |
| Thomas Lux's Response   |  | 78 |
| JACK MYERS              | Leaving   | 80 |
|                         | How to Get Outside                                  | 80 |
|                         | The Family War                                      | 81 |
|                         | The Ant Makes Progress TowardsHimself          | 81 |
| James Welch             | TNT   | 82 |
| Jack Myers's Response   |  | 83 |

|                           |  |     |
|---------------------------|--|-----|
| GREGORY ORR               | Poem                              | 85  |
|                           | Evolution                         | 85  |
|                           | Poem                              | 85  |
|                           | His Room                          | 86  |
|                           | Some Things                       | 86  |
| Louise Glück              | On Gregory Orr's Poems            | 86  |
| Gregory Orr's Response    |  | 88  |
| STANLEY PLUMLY            | Light                             | 90  |
|                           | Dreamsong                         | 90  |
|                           | In Sleep                          | 91  |
| Maura Stanton             | On Stanley Plumly's Poems         | 92  |
| Stanley Plumly's Response |  | 93  |
| MAURA STANTON             | The First Child                   | 95  |
|                           | Crabs                             | 95  |
|                           | In Ignorant Cadence               | 96  |
| Gregory Orr               | On Maura Stanton's Poems          | 97  |
| Maura Stanton's Response  |  | 100 |
| JAMES TATE                | Cruisin' Even                     | 102 |
|                           | Eavesdropper Without a Port,      |     |
|                           | Becoming Small                    | 103 |
|                           | Poem (I Can't Speak for the Wind) | 104 |
| Thomas Lux                | James Tate and Thor Heyerdahl on  |     |
|                           | Their Way to Work                 | 104 |
| James Tate's Response     |  | 106 |
| JAMES WELCH               | Birthday in Saronis               | 108 |
|                           | Flies                             | 109 |
|                           | In the American Express Line      | 109 |
| James Tate                | On James Welch's Poems            | 110 |
| James Welch's Response    |  | 111 |
| MERLE E. BROWN            | Dodecaphonic Scales               | 113 |