

Patrick Moran

SLIVERS

Knives without handles,
pins without heads,

needles void
of that one graceful eye,

we can hold out
for weeks in the village of your thumb,

in the country of your hand.