

Still-fishing · Gayle Roby

Two dragonflies' burning blue bodies hover over the line guide at the tip of my rod. The black nylon line feeds out—a tug from underwater—weed or sunfish. The reel trembles in my hand. The dragonflies rise one on top of the other, eight wings, and fly off without letting go.