CIGARETTE BUTTS

My cigarette butts are my forest, I'm piously addicted to the drug; Without a smoke I get too lonely, I love the fire, love the bright glow. On a gloomy sunless day, The fire in me never dies out. That's how my imagination takes wing. Nobody escapes the day of burial. I want to be buried here in my forest.

A FIGURE SEEN FROM BEHIND

I can see only your back
As you stand facing the mountain.
Watching your excitement before that height,
I would prefer to hide my name in a cave
Like an outlaw taking to the greenwood.
Sometimes climbing is a way of sinking,
And sinking a way of climbing.
The ancient cave is prolonged, and deep,
I'm setting out from the eyes toward the mind.
