

RAISE HIGH THE GLASS

Because of a kiss in the slaughterhouse in the red wine let light shine deep and toast what vanishes like a rainbow stared at, and all truant things that will not keep;

also our ignorance of the last night
of our lives, its famished breathing.

Then, in the red wine, taste the light.