

WILD CHERRY SWEETS

It looks like goat pellets,
the eye of a tropical fly
black like the backside of a pot upon the fire, a teardrop formed in the forest.
Little marble from a tree,
sweet as the lips of an old man speaking,
I devour you in May.