

Authors' brief biography:

Jean Hong, B.S., is a second year Doctor of Audiology student at the University of Iowa. She received her Bachelor of Science in Cognitive Science with a specialization in Language and Culture at University of California, San Diego. Her research interests focus on understanding underlying neural mechanisms for speech-in- noise processes in children and adults with hearing loss.

Abigail Bentz, B.S., is a second year Doctor of Audiology student at the University of Iowa. She received her Bachelor of Science in Communication Sciences and Disorders at the University of Wisconsin - Eau Claire. She is currently working as a student research assistant for the Cochlear Implant Research Team in the Otolaryngology department at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. Her clinical and research interests include speech perception and listening outcomes in adults and children with cochlear implants and hearing assistive technology.

Meggan Lind, B.S., is a second year Doctor of Audiology student at the University of Iowa. She received her Bachelor of Science in Communication Sciences and Disorders at the University of Wisconsin - Eau Claire. She is currently working as a student research assistant in the Cochlear Implant Electrophysiology Lab in the Otolaryngology department at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. Her clinical and research interests include hearing aids, cochlear implants, and auditory evoked potentials, with a special interest in pediatrics.

Eun Kyung Jeon, Au.D/Ph.D., CCC-A

Eun Kyung (Julie) Jeon, Au.D./Ph.D. is a Clinical Assistant Professor in Communication Sciences and Disorders at the University of Iowa. She received her Au.D. in 2008 and Ph.D. in hearing science in 2016 from the University of Iowa. She currently works at the University of Iowa as a clinical assistant professor. Her research and clinic interests are in aural (re)habilitation for children and adults with hearing aids and cochlear implants. She is a member of the American Academy of Audiology (AAA), the American Cochlear Implant Alliance (ACIA), the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA), the Iowa Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ISHA), and the Asia Pacific Society of Speech-Language-Hearing (APSSLH). She is a reviewer for journals including Ear and Hearing, Cochlear Implant International, and Annals of Otolaryngology, Rhinology & Laryngology. She also serves as an educational committee officer for the APSSLH, a Member-at-Large for the ISLH (Iowa Speech Language Hearing) Foundation, a program committee member for the CI2023 conference, and an Iowa's EHDI Advisory Board representative for the ISHA.