

A CORRECTED MAP OF WHITMAN'S WASHINGTON BOARDING HOUSES AND WORK PLACES

Because of an error in the electronic transmission of the image, the map on the back cover of the last issue of the Walt Whitman Quarterly Review (Summer 2004) contained some inaccuracies. Below is a corrected map, designed by Emery Pajer, showing the location of Whitman's residences and places of work during the decade (1863-1873) he lived in Washington, D.C. I have also included an abbreviated key to the map; for details about each site, see the original note in WWQR 22 (Summer 2004), 23-28.
