

WHITMAN: A CURRENT BIBLIOGRAPHY

- Bart, Barbara, ed. Starting from Paumanok 5, no. 1 (Winter 1990); and 5, no. 2 (Spring 1990). [Newsletter of Walt Whitman Birthplace Association; each issue contains news of WWBA activities and one article; the articles from these two issues are listed separately in this bibliography.]
- Bassat, Judith. "With Walt Whitman in Camden: A Progress Report and a Supplement." Walt Whitman Quarterly Review 7 (Spring 1990), 163-179.
- Bauerlein, Mark Weightman. "The Signs of Feeling: A Study of Whitman's Poetics and Poetry." Ph.D. Dissertation, University of California, Los Angeles, 1988. [DAI 49/09-A, 2656.]
- Cherkovski, Neeli. "Ginsberg, Whitman and America." Another Chicago Magazine no. 18 (1988), 211-221. [Excerpt from Cherkovski's Whitman's Wild Children (1988).]
- Christman, Henry M., ed. Walt Whitman's New York: From Manhattan to Montauk. New York: New Amsterdam Books, 1989. [Reprint of 1963 Macmillan edition; contains Whitman's "Brooklyniana" articles from the Brooklyn Standard.]
- Edmundson, Mark. "'Lilacs': Walt Whitman's American Elegy." Nineteenth-Century Literature 44 (March 1990), 465-491. [Reading of "Lilacs" based on analysis of Freud's 1917 "Mourning and Melancholia"; argues that "Lilacs" embodies a commitment to both melancholia and mourning, inscribing a distinctly American vacillation between "aggressive self-reliance and cold conformity."]
- Erkkila, Betsy. Review of M. Jimmie Killingsworth, Whitman's Poetry of the Body. Walt Whitman Quarterly Review 7 (Spring 1990), 194-197.
- Gravett, Sharon Lee. "'Freezes and Thaws': Romantic Irony in the Works of Thomas Carlyle, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry David Thoreau, and Walt Whitman." Ph.D. Dissertation, Duke University, 1989. [DAI 50/08-A, 2621.]

- Hutchinson, George. "Whitman's Confidence Game: The 'Good Gray Poet' and the Civil War." South Central Review 7 (Spring 1990), 20-35. [Analyzes the ways that Whitman constructed, in the post-War years, a final stoic pose that allowed him to maintain an untarnished claim to his construction of the Civil War's meaning as the bloody initiation of American democracy.]
- James, Jeffrey. "Whitman—Words and Music." Starting from Paumanok 5 (Winter 1990), 1, 6. [Brief comments on a few "Whitman-inspired works written by American composers over the years."]
- Jason, Philip K. Nineteenth-Century American Poetry: An Annotated Bibliography. Pasadena, CA: Salem Press, 1989. [Annotated bibliography of selected general studies of Whitman, and selected studies of fourteen Whitman poems, pp. 146-188.]
- Kim, Yong-ho. Whitman and Han Yong-Un. Seoul: Sasayon Press, 1988. [Study of Whitman's spiritual and political affinities with Korean poet Han Yong-Un (1879-1944). In Korean.]
- Kriegel, Leonard. "From the Burning Bush: The Autobiographical 'I.'" The Sewanee Review 97 (Spring 1989), 202-219. [Comments on Whitman's "autobiographical imperative" in "Song of Myself," 207-209.]
- Levine, Herbert J. "A Jew to the Jew He Seems." Starting from Paumanok 5 (Spring 1990), 1, 4. [Similarities between Whitman's ideas and "Jewish ideas about revelation and tradition."]
- . " 'Song of Myself' as Whitman's American Bible." Modern Language Quarterly 48 (June 1987), 145-161. [Examination of the "biblical basis" of the "generic and narrative patterns" of "Song," and of how Whitman becomes "an exegete of his own religious vision" in his attempt to "provide a religious foundation for American democracy foundering on the verge of disunion."]
- . "Walt Whitman's American Torah." Reconstructionist 54 (July/August 1989), 27-30, 34. [Longer version of essay listed two entries above, emphasizing "similarities of structure" between Whitman's poetry and the "textual traditions of Judaism."]

- Pascal, Richard. "Walt Whitman and Woody Guthrie: American Prophet-Singers and Their People." Journal of American Studies 24 (April 1990), 41-59. [Influence of Whitman on Guthrie's poetry and songs, with focus on "the plight of the socially engaged artist in a modern mass society"; both Guthrie and Whitman failed to initiate "the enlightened popular response they each purported, loudly, to foresee."]
- Price, Kenneth M. Review of M. Jimmie Killingsworth, Whitman's Poetry of the Body. American Literature 62 (June 1990), 329-330.
- Sánchez-Eppler, Karen. "To Stand Between: A Political Perspective on Whitman's Poetics of Merger and Embodiment." ELH 56 (Winter 1989), 923-949. [Analysis of how Whitman's "singing of the body" is "a practice derived from the dynamics of American slavery," and how Whitman's poetry both mediates between the social divisions exemplified by slavery and "incarnates those divisions"; discusses "Song of Myself," "I Sing the Body Electric," "Sleepers," and Franklin Evans.]
